What is an unsecured personal loan?

If you've landed here, you're likely trying to figure out how to get out of a mountain of credit card debt. Or you've experienced the disappointment of being turned down for a loan by your local bank.

An unsecured personal loan from a private investor may be your best option. We've all been there. An unforeseen medical emergency, the birth of a first child, a tree fell through your roof, or to survive your relationship needs a couple of weeks in Hawaii...

So if you need to borrow money for pretty much any reason, anywhere from $2,000 - $35,000, and you've a decent FICO score, we're going to show you how to do this.

Let us lay out all the nuts and bolts in detail for you...

No collateral required

An unsecured personal loan means there's no collateral required. You can borrow what you need based on your good credit. And if you make the payments on time your good. If you miss a couple of payments, or you're late - your credit score takes a hit. You don't wake up one morning watching your car being towed away, or come home to a foreclosure notice on your door.

It's really that simple. If you've a decent FICO score you more than likely qualify for an unsecured personal loan.

Where do I get an unsecured personal loan?

You're about to learn of a radically different way to borrow money. It's called "peer to peer lending", or "P2P loans". Some even call them "person to person loans". Private investors are standing by ready, willing, and able to give you the loan that the bank would not.

The modern "peer to peer lending" marketplace is only a few years old. And yet it's showing signs of revolutionizing the way we borrow and lend money. People just like you are bypassing the Big Banks and credit card companies. And going straight to investors who will to lend you the money you need, when you need it.

Surprisingly low rates

In most instances, these loans carry a much lower interest rate than you'd pay on your own credit card. Rates can be as low as 6.73%, and payments are monthly from 2 - 5 years. So if you have good credit, an unsecured personal loan can be just minutes away, and funds in your bank account within a couple of days.
